A kind of Mayo Clinic for golf: Hitting bays open out to a manicured range with views of the Atlantic, and golfers can wire up to have their swings analyzed electronically. You can putt on an artificial green that generates its own humps and swales, complete with laser-beam projections of how they'll break." Below the text is a large aerial photograph of a golf course, showing a clubhouse, a green, and a sandy area near the ocean. Below the image is a link to a Bloomberg.com article titled "Sea Island's Multimillion-Dollar Center Is the Mayo Clinic of Golf".
